First Nation Consultation Policy Example

CONSULTATION POLICY
from The End of False Consultation: a guide to First Nations empowerment through meaningful participation in resource development.

A. INTRODUCTION

Adoption

I. This Consultation Policy was adopted by the X Indian Band at a community meeting on October 28, 1998

Application

2. This Consultation Policy shall apply to any consultation undertaken by either the Provincial or Federal Crown arising out of either:

   i) The Crown's duty to consult with First Nations attendant upon the Crown's fiduciary duty in respect of First Nations; or

   ii) any statutory duty of the Crown to consult with X First Nation (XFN).

This policy shall apply when the duty applies to the Crown, its Ministers, employees or agents.

B. WHEN SHALL CONSULTATION BE UNDERTAKEN?

General

3. XFN expects both the Provincial and Federal Crown to undertake consultation whenever it is proposed that an activity be undertaken with either Crown's approval or acquiescence which may affect XFN traditional territory, including the Y Area, or which may affect XFN exercises of its aboriginal rights. A map of the relevant area (the XFN Traditional Territory”) is attached as Schedule 'A'.

Specific:

4. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing XFN expects the Provincial and/or Federal Crown to undertake consultation when:

   i) resource extraction in XFN Traditional Territory is being considered;

   ii) exploration activities in the XFN Traditional Territories are being considered;
iii) whenever any alteration (as defined in the Heritage Conservation Act) to Heritage objects or Heritage Sites in the XFN Traditional Territory are being considered; and

iv) whenever grants of parents or other significant alienation's of lands are being considered.

Timing

5. XFN expects to be consulted at an early stage of any such consideration and, in any event, before any licenses, permits or other authorization which affect rights in the XFN Traditional Territory are issued.

6. XFN is very concerned that consultation not be limited to the later stages of any approval process, when significant time pressures are applied to XFN which undermine effective consultation.

C. HOW SHALL CONSULTATION BE COMMENCED?

In Writing

7. XFN expects that the Crown will notify XFN in writing when a situation arises which requires consultation.

To Solicitors

8. This notice shall be sent to our solicitors, who shall be Woodward and Company until XFN indicates any change.

Particularity

9. This notice shall contain sufficient information to allow XFN to:

   i) understand the nature and scope of the proposed activity;
   ii) understand the timing of the proposed activity;
   iii) understand the location of the proposed activity;
   iv) understand how the proposed activity may affect XFN Traditional Territory, including particular;
   v) understand who will be undertaking the activity;
   vi) understand who will be making the final decision for the Crown and who will be assisting that person in making that decision;
   vii) understand what documents, including applications, studies, assessments, policies are available to be reviewed which are pertinent to the proposed activity;
viii) understand what collateral or related processes or approvals are being undertaken by the Crown's in relation to the proposed activity;
ix) understand any relevant deadlines or filing dates;
x) understand the Crown's proposed form of consultation;
xi) understand such further other relevant information the Crown may possess relating to the proposed activity; and
xii) to be advised of all pertinent addressed and phone numbers for contacting the relevant decision makers and those assisting him or her.

Generality

10. The above particulars should not be taken to derogate from the Crown's obligation to give adequate notice to the XFN permit them to:
   i) understand how their rights and interests are proposed to be affected; and
   ii) understand how they can meaningfully respond to the proposed action.

D. FORM AND CONDUCT OF CONSULTATION

Form of Consultation

11. Consultation shall take place in five forms:
   i) oral consultation with the Hereditary Chief, traditional Chiefs, Chief and Council and Elders of the XFN either with or without their counsel; or
   ii) written consultation with the Hereditary Chief, traditional Chiefs, Chief and Council and Elders of which shall be conducted through the offices of their counsel (Woodward and Company)

No other form of contact between the Crown and XFN will be understood to be consultation. In particular, telephone calls to Band officials and employees, faxes, and material sent to the Band office, shall not even be considered consultation.

Crown Representatives

12. XFN will only engage in consultation with;
   i) the relevant decision maker; and
   ii) such representative so the relevant decision makers or will have been agreed in advance in writing by the XFN and the decision maker
Third Party Representatives

13. XFN will not engage or agree to engage in consultation on behalf of the Crown with third parties who are:

   i) directly or indirectly interested in the proposed activity, this includes the proposed beneficial recipient of the authorization; or

   ii) parties acting on behalf of the parties described in (i).

Availability for Oral Consultation

14. The Chief, Council and Elders of the XFN will be available one day per month to engage in oral consultation. This allocation of time is based upon the Chief's, Council's and Elders' assessment of their available resources.

15. Oral consultation should be scheduled well in advance and, in any event, no less than thirty days before the date of the proposed oral consultation.

16. All communications regarding the scheduling or oral consultation sessions and matters relating to the agenda of such sessions, shall be directed to XFN counsel.

Availability of Band Members

17. XFN will make reasonable efforts to make arrangements, subject to adequate resources being made available by the Crown or interested parties, to have Band Members participate in activities such as studies, assessments, conferences, workshops and the like. However, such investment will not constitute consultation by the Crown XFN.

Substance of Consultation

18. The XFN expect that consultation by the Crown shall take place in the light of the Crown's fiduciary duty to safeguard and to take into account the aboriginal rights of the XFN.

19. The XFN also expect to be consulted in light of any statutory requirements to consult and with due attention paid to principles of fairness and natural justice.

20. The XFN expect that any consultation will be undertaken in good faith and that the Crown is open to hearing those concerns which the XFN may express. In general, the XFN understand that the Crown has:

   i) a duty to inform; and

   ii) a duty to listen.
21. The XFN particularly expect, without in any way limiting the generality of the foregoing, that:

   iv) the Crown will listen to and fairly consider XFN views as to the effect the proposed activity will have on XFN rights and interests; and

   v) The Crown will listen to and fairly consider any proposed alternatives to the proposed activity, including:

       a) not engaging in the activity;

       b) delaying the activity;

       c) engaging in a more detailed assessment of the effects of the activity;

       d) imposing limitations or conditions on the activity; and

       e) providing resources to XFN to allow it to meaningfully participate in the consultation process.
First Nations: Example Cultural Heritage Policy

1) Background

Ownership and Title

The X First Nation have inhabited their territory, which encompasses what is now known as the _____ and beyond, since time immemorial. Thus, X First Nation have title within their territory.

The X First Nation have never extinguished title to their territory, in any manner, and will not do so in a modern day treaty.

In order to have given up title, the X First Nation would have had to have done so in one of the following ways:

1. Ceded their territory: a treaty or other legal agreement has never been signed by the X First Nation;
2. By conquest: neither the Canadian government nor any First Nation has ever conquered the X First Nation in war;
3. By discovery: since the X First Nation have been here since time immemorial, they have never been discovered by any governments. The concept of terra nullus was discredited by the International Court of Justice in the Western Sahara case. In this case, the government tried to say they gained title because the indigenous inhabitants that were there were uncivilized and therefore could not be considered to inhabit the land.

Therefore, through law, the X First Nation have never ceded, surrendered, or released any part of their territory to any government. Despite this, Federal and Provincial government policy has alienated the X First Nation from the management of their territory. As a result, the X First Nation have considerable concern regarding the nature and extent of development within the territory and the effect such development has on cultural heritage resources and the exercising of the X First Nation’s aboriginal rights. Survey in the last number of years have shown that many cultural heritage resources - ranging from CMT’s to village sites - have been destroyed by development. As a first step to prevent further damage, the consultation process and the procedures/prescriptions outlined in this policy are intended to ensure that cultural heritage resources are protected, managed and interpreted in a way that is respectful of the X First Nation’s stewardship role over the territory.

Objectives:

1. Identify, to the greatest extent possible, cultural heritage site/areas within the X First Nation territory utilizing both oral history and field reconnaissance.
2. Map and record cultural heritage sites/areas to preserve the record of X First Nation’s use of the territory.
3. Promote and facilitate the protection of all cultural heritage resources in a way that is respectful of the X First Nation’s standards and values.
4. Negotiate the restoration of cultural heritage resources that have been damaged.
5. Repatriate selected items, as well as completed collections of archival, ethnographic and archaeological collections and materials that may be stored and curated elsewhere.

6. Facilitated X First Nation’s goals for cultural heritage through policies developed by X First Nation and consultation protocols negotiated between X First Nation and relevant government agencies.

7. Ensure that X First Nation’s policies are recognized as a priority over other government laws or policies and that other governments acknowledge and comply with X First Nation’s policy.

8. Encourage and facilitate training of X First Nation community members in various aspects of cultural heritage resource management.

General Principles:

1. X First Nation’s title to the territory includes ownership over all cultural heritage resources.

2. Ownership over cultural heritage resources includes X First Nation’s right to manage such resources.

3. Management of cultural heritage resources includes X First Nation’s right to interpret the significance of such resources and contribute to the interpretive process of any cultural heritage resource investigation.

4. X First Nation have ownership over the results of any cultural heritage investigation (e.g. Artifacts, samples, field notes, photos, maps, reports, tapes, etc.).

5. Oral traditions and traditional ecological knowledge are recognized as a valid part of archaeological/scientific investigation.

6. CMTs may only be sampled, moved cut or logged with the consent of the X First Nation.

7. Forest management must consider non-timber values equally with timber values.

Scope of Policy:

This policy will apply to all projects, works, land developments and resource management projects (including those proposed for rivers, lakes and waterways) that may impact the cultural heritage resources of the X First Nation.

This policy will also apply to any and all research that may be proposed by anthropologists, archaeologists, ethnographers, historians or any other disciplinary research where the X First Nation’s cultural heritage resources are the subjects of study.

2) Cultural Heritage Investigation Permitting Process:

Recognizing that X First Nation are the stewards over their territory and that work within the territory must meet acceptable standards, X First Nation’s consent is needed for any proposing cultural heritage investigation with the territory (e.g. archaeology, anthropology, ethno-biology, ethno-botany, ethnography). For example, archaeologists will be required to obtain a Cultural Heritage Investigation Permit prior to their proposal being sent to the Archaeology Branch. This permit will include X First Nation's comments and consent and will be submitted with the archaeologist's proposal to regulatory bodies such as the Archaeology Branch.

3) Post-1846 Culturally Modified Tree Management Process:

A) Analysis of Existing Provincial Policy:

There are two common working definitions of a CMT:

1) A tree or remnant of a tree associated with old growth forests which bears evidence of traditional aboriginal forest use; and

2) A tree that has been intentionally altered by Native people participation in the tradition utilization of the forest. (Quoted from the Ministry of Forests, South Island Forest District CMT Workshop. Heather Moon and Rich Howard, 1997)

In relation to CMTs, two important distinctions are made:

1) Pre-1846 CMTs are considered to be archaeological sites and are automatically protected under the Heritage Conservation Act (HCA); and

2) Post-1846 CMTs are considered to be an indication of an aboriginal right but are not protected by the HCA.

These basic parameters are used by the Province to determine the management prescriptions that will be applied to CMTs. However, if CMTs are to be properly managed and/or protected, then they must be considered within the larger context of aboriginal rights and title.

B) Aboriginal Rights:

The ability to exercise and aboriginal right, in this case the use of particular forest resources, is protected by the Constitution, cases such as Sparrow and Delgamuuk'w, and policies such as the MoF’s Protection of Aboriginal Rights. The intention is to ensure that any infringement of the aboriginal right to utilize trees for traditional use purposes is avoided. Gathering cedar then, for example, is an aboriginal right that is protected but the remaining physical evidence is not. However, oral history and samples confirm that many places where cedar is gathered are returned to over time due to that area's attributes such as access, quality or relationship to its surrounding. Therefore, the lack of protection given to post-1846 CMTs is in fact an infringement of aboriginal rights since the harvesting of CMTs prevents X First Nation members for ever gathering cedar from those trees again.

C) Aboriginal Title:

X First Nation have title over their territory. One key to proving title in the courts is physical evidence. While pre-1846 CMTs represent extremely important proof that X First Nation occupied the territory prior to contact, post-1846 CMTs are equally important in demonstrating X First Nation's continuous use of the territory. In order that such evidence is not lost, all CMTs regardless of their dates must be properly recorded and protected.
D) Management Procedures:

1) Determine the potential of an area to contain post-1846 CMTs
   a) Consult any traditional use information that may be compiled for the area. X First Nation's TUS is in its early stages so this information source may not be available;
   b) Access to the area: Easier access may be an indicate a greater chance of CMTs being present;
   c) Species of trees within and/or around the area;
   d) Proximity to past and/or present X First Nation settlement;
   e) Proximity to water (e.g. creeks, lakes and rivers);
   f) Consultation with X First Nation community to identify known CMT sites; and
   g) Recommend appropriate assessments.

2) Conduct assessments
   a) Field studies are only to be conducted with the permission of X First Nation (as per permitting process);
   b) Where possible, surveys will be conducted by X First Nation crews;
   c) When necessary, professional archaeologists will partner with X First Nation to conduct any studies. This entails X First Nation’s input into the field methods, participation in the field study and comments attached to the final report;
   d) All CMTs will include the following photographic record:
      i) whole tree (or as much as possible) showing location of cultural modification relative to the rest of the tree;
      ii) close up of cultural modification;
      iii) location shot: CMT in context of immediate surroundings;
      iv) context of surroundings (show broader locale);
   e) All CMTs will be recorded according to Provincial standards on Level 1 or 2 recording forms; and
   f) Assessments will be evaluated both on a block by block basis as well as based on their interrelationship to surrounding territory.

3) Significance Rating

X First Nation will utilize the following questions as a guide in determining the cultural significance of a CMT:
a) Are the CMTs associated with ongoing traditional harvesting in the area?

b) Does the particular site have cultural significance?

c) Does the site belong to a particular family?

d) Are alternative sites available to carry on the traditional activity?

e) Do the CMTs have association with oral traditions about use in the area?

f) Are the CMTs considered evidence useful for treaty negotiations?

g) Do the CMTs represent a potential economic opportunity for guided tours?

h) In addition, it must be understood that the ritual of prayer and offerings is done to each tree before and after the modification is made, thus making each CMT a spiritual site. CMT sites have the European equivalency to the places of worship. Therefore, destruction of a CMT site is similar to the destruction of a church.

4) Implementation of recommendations

a) Where X First Nation determine that a CMT warrants protection, the following management prescriptions will be considered:

   i) Avoidance is always the first option;

   ii) Buffers of 20 meters surrounding the tree;

   iii) In the case of the CMT being a Danger tree, then a buffer zone of one tree length should be implemented (WCB regulations);

   iv) Adjusting block boundaries;

   v) Moving road placements;

   vi) Include CMTs in wildlife patches, variable retention, leave trees, riparian zones and/or other special management reserve areas.

b) Where X First Nation agree that a CMT cannot be protected, possible means of mitigation include:

   i) Forwarding the CMT to the X First Nation community for cultural purposes;

   ii) Collection of a stem round sample for further study;

   iii) Provision of further survey word in the associated area;

   iv) Financial compensation.

5. Finding of Previously Unknown/Unidentified CMTs
"In the event that the location of cultural heritage resources are not known, the Forest Practices Code provides for the protection of previously unidentified resource features which may be located during actual operations..."

The Code defines cultural heritage resources as "an object, a site or a location of a traditional societal practice that is of historical, cultural or archaeological significance to the Province, a community or an aboriginal people."

Note: the Code does not prohibit the damaging of cultural heritage resources. It only requires statements of intended mitigation.

a) Stop work immediately and avoid damaging any CMTs. In the event that CMTs are accidentally cut, leave the tree;

b) Notify the X First Nation, District Manager and Archaeology branch (if uncertain the CMT is post-1846; and

c) Proceed with Steps 2-4 of management procedure.

CONSULTATION PROCESS

Guiding Principles:

The duty to consult includes:

1. The X First Nation must be provided with full information and involvement in the decision making of any activity or development, and Canada or BC must fully inform themselves of the practices of the X First Nation and their views on the activity or development. These measures must take place in the early stages of planning.
2. Full information must be provided on a continuing basis. As information and knowledge changes, this must be communicated to the X First Nation on an ongoing basis.

3. Consultation must be in good faith.

4. The intention of consultation is to substantially address the concerns of the X First Nation. This means that there should be a generous interpretation in favor of the X First Nation where such advice or consideration of any advice or recommendations must be given. Where such advice or recommendations are not adopted, reasons must be provided and an appeal process must be available.

5. Technical and/or financial resources shall be provided to the X First Nation so they can adequately review the issue being consulted on.

Interests:

1. BC and Canada will consult with the X First Nation:
   a) Before either government enacts or amends a law if such enactment or amendment will affect the X First Nation territory or rights; or
   b) When there is a proposed activity or development in the X First Nation territory that could affect or impact on the X First Nation territory or rights.

2. Consult and consultation means a process that:
   a) Is based on the above guiding principles;
   b) Includes X First Nation having majority representation in the relevant decision making body;
   c) Begins at the early stages of planning; and
   d) Adequately supported both financially and technically.

3. X First Nation's consent will be required where:
   a) Hunting or fishing regulations are affected;
   b) Cultural heritage resources require management;
   c) Aboriginal rights are infringed upon, substantially reduced or areas where rights are exercised are eliminated; or
   d) X First Nation's quality of life is affected in a way that members cannot carry out their life in the same manner as before.

The Parties agree that the uniqueness and special characteristics of the oil and gas industry and its activities within British Columbia make it necessary to process oil and gas related referrals in a timely manner. Further, the Parties agree that consultation shall proceed through HRFN’s Chief and Council, or their official designates, only. To this end,

1. The Province shall initiate timely referrals, and undertake consultations with HRFN in regard to oil and gas sector related activity;

Further, the Parties agree that these financial contributions will be directed to the Chief and Council of HRFN.

HRFN will not request or accept any fees, levies, compensation or other charges from companies, or their representatives, engaged in oil and gas sector related activity during the term of this Memorandum, other than: those provided for under this Memorandum; charitable donations and gifts unconditionally and voluntarily made by a company to HRFN that are permitted under the Income Tax Act (examples could include educational scholarships and events sponsorships); those costs that may be

The level of financial contributions defined in Appendix 2 and Appendix 3 will be fixed for the term of this Memorandum.

The specific terms and conditions of disbursement and accountability of these financial contributions will be set out in a Contribution Agreement that shall maintain the spirit and intent of this Memorandum.

1.0 Capacity Financial Contribution

The purpose of the capacity financial contribution is to assist HRFN in acquiring resources in order to identify potential infringements of treaty rights by proposed oil and gas sector activity, to consult with the Province, and to review and process oil and gas related activity referrals in the time-frame established in this Memorandum.

This financial contribution will be disbursed quarterly to Halfway River First Nation by the B.C. Oil and Gas Commission based on a fee the Commission collects from oil and gas companies upon application for approval to undertake activities on Provincial Crown land. This financial contribution will be administered in the manner described in Appendix 2 and as set out in the Contribution Agreement.

The Parties agree that the financial contribution provided in this Memorandum for HRFN's capacity will replace all fees relating to capacity, including random liaison fees and fees for all monitors, and that the fee schedule will not provide for, nor allow, any payments for oil and gas related facilities or activities undertaken prior to the effective date of this Memorandum.

2.0 Development Financial Contribution

The purpose of the development financial contribution is to support community development initiatives as defined by the Chief and Council of HRFN.

This financial contribution will be disbursed at the end of each quarter to HRFN by the B.C. This financial contribution will be administered in the manner described in Appendix 3 and as set out in the Contribution Agreement.

The Parties agree that the formula to be used for disbursing the development financial contribution will be 7.25 -- i.e., total development financial contributions received by the Oil and Gas Commission from the oil and gas industry will be divided equally (amounting to four-twenty-ninths of the total) and disbursed to each of the seven B.C.-based Treaty 8 First Nations, subject to their signing a Memorandum of Understanding with the Province, and a smaller portion (amounting to one-twenty-ninth of the total) will be provided to the Dene Tha’ First Nation with claimed territory based on traplines in B.C., also subject to Dene Tha’ signing a Memorandum of Understanding with the Province.

The Parties agree that the development financial contribution provided in this Memorandum will replace all post-approval fees, compensation or other charges that may be requested of industry by HRFN, and that the fee schedule will not provide for, nor allow, any payments for oil and gas related facilities or activities undertaken prior to the effective date of this Memorandum.

IX. FIRST NATION-INDUSTRY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AGREEMENTS

For the purposes of any existing agreements that may exist between HRFN and companies engaged in oil and gas sector related activities, the Parties agree that the payments under this Memorandum supersede and replace the financial arrangements made in those agreements.

The Parties agree that in addition to this Memorandum separate bilateral agreements between HRFN and oil and gas companies are a valuable tool to define protocols for working relationships, to encourage the employment of First Nation contractors, to foster training and employment opportunities, and to facilitate long-term mutually beneficial business relationships, provided that there are no mandatory costs or fees associated with those agreements.

X. DISPUTE RESOLUTION

The Parties agree to reach, within ninety (90) calendar days of the signing of this Memorandum, a dispute resolution process that will address disputes over the interpretation of this Memorandum, and disputes associated with the implementation of this Memorandum.

The Parties commit to making best efforts to resolve disputes that may arise between them related to oil and gas companies’ certainty of costs and ability to operate on Crown land.

The Parties agree to make best efforts to enable oil and gas companies to operate without interruption once oil and gas activities are approved. Should unreasonable interruption occur, the Parties agree that the dispute resolution process is immediately triggered.

such meetings will be conducted on an annual basis. Any amendments or revisions to this Memorandum may only be considered at the time of these reviews and made in accordance with the following:

-- sixty (60) calendar days prior to the review, a proposed amendment must be submitted in writing to the Oil and Gas Commission, for consideration and approval by the Parties to this Memorandum.

Best efforts must be made by both Parties to address and resolve the matter, with the goal of avoiding termination, within thirty (30) calendar days.

2. If, at the end of the thirty-day period, the Parties have not resolved the matter, the Party wishing to terminate this Memorandum provides sixty (60) calendar days written notice to the other Party. Further efforts by both Parties to avoid termination will be undertaken throughout that 60-day period.

Abrupt Termination

Non-compliance with the consultation process, financial contribution provisions or the fee schedules of this Memorandum, by either Party, will be deemed to constitute thirty (30) days’ notice of termination of this Memorandum, provided that such notice is given in writing and best efforts are made by both Parties to address and resolve the circumstances which led to the decision to terminate.

For the purposes of both voluntary and abrupt termination, all elements of this Memorandum end at the date of termination, including all financial contribution commitments, and any unexpended advances of funds will be returned by HRFN to the Province.

The Parties agree that the terms of this Memorandum of Understanding apply to all representatives of the Parties.

The Parties agree that additional agencies, organizations, enterprises or governments may become Parties to this Memorandum if all existing Parties agree in writing.
